Paris, Washington DC, 22.11.2017, 02:28 Time

USPA NEWS - Christophe Castaner said about his election to the leadership of the party LREM, ("La République en Marche"^[1], "Republic In March"^[2]) "Saturday, the Council entrusted me with this immense responsibility to become the General Delegate of our movement. It's a pride. What makes Republic In March is a different way of doing politics. To succeed, I need you." This states the message he sent to the militants of his party LREM the party founded by President Macron, in April 2016, became the party of France's richest and counts at the National Assembly with 351 seats, a string majority of MP's, since the overwhelming victory last at the legislative elections in June 2017. LREM, is the youngest and richest Party in France, a one of a kind political movement, since the Socialist Party is in agony and the right wing (Les Republicans), stuck in the affairs since the Penelope Gate and the loss of the presidential campaign, while candidate François Fillon facing Emmanuel Macron.

This states the message he sent to the militants of his party LREM the party founded by President Macron, in April 2016, became the party of France's richest. Christophe Castaner est actuellement le porte parole du gouvernement, et State Secretary in charge of relations with the Parliament and MP of Alpes Hautes Provinces (Legislative elections 2017).-----

Unsurprisingly, Christophe Castaner takes the reins of the movement La République en Marche. Faithful from the beginning, the former socialist will stand as a guarantor of leftist values in a presidential movement criticized for his liberal choices. A boon for Emmanuel Macron. It has a role of triple cap, already already taking. This is propelled by the choice of his own President of the Republic Emmanuel Macron at the head of the Party The Republic in March (the richest party of France and majority in the National Assembly with 351 seats out of 577). The suspense has been maintained for a dozen days, between the elections of the militants, which followed the choice of President Macron, and the controversy that arose in the media about the cumulation of all functions, Christophe Castaner. A little much for one man. The question that arises is whether Castaner can continue to be the spokesman for the government. Prime Minister Édouard Philippe reassured him that "Christophe Castaner is quite capable of performing both functions", in the government and at the head of LREM "-----

Another question that arises is who will be the new spokesperson of the government in case of leadership of the party by Christophe Castaner. The staff of the Élysée said that the redesign would be done during this week. This would indicate that the government would be redesigned, and the new President Macron's style has made the media and commentators foolish about their assumptions, as Macron often breaks codes and creates a surprise where no one is there expecting. So Wait and See^[1]

According to the official statement of Emmanuel Macron's Parti Chrétienne, "La République en Marche" "We have all engaged with Emmanuel Macron to transform France, so that everyone can really develop their abilities and choose their life, through education, work and training. Six months after his election, the transformation of our country is on its way: to restore confidence in our democracy, to put the social lift back on course, to rebuild the European project, to guarantee the safety of the citizens, to transform our social model, to reinforce the power of purchase, release energies and encourage investment, make France's voice heard on the international scene. And all this in respect of the word given: the President said it, it does!
